Disk Hero and ICCA Announce Reseller Program for Members

Dublin, CA, December 17, 2007 – Disk Hero has incorporated its new Remote Target capability product as part of its standard offering for ICCA members. This allows ICCA members to have an additional copy of their customers’ automatically backed up data for rapid data recovery in any data loss situation.

“Disk Hero has been a mainstay for my customers over the past year. In many cases, it has saved them from certain hardship when an important file became corrupted or deleted at a critical moment,” stated David A. Zimmer, American Eagle Group (www.ameagle.com) and member of the ICCA. “With the new Remote Target capability, I can serve my customers in two ways: I can have a local copy of their important files for quicker restoration of files and a backup to back me up. This is a great safety net for both me and my customers.”

The additional copy is local to the ICCA member with its own encryption and password protection. This local copy allows an ICCA member to restore even large amounts of lost data as quickly as they can visit their customer.

“The data encryption eliminates the customers’ worry of theft of sensitive data. The customer controls the password which unlocks the encrypted data. Even though my customers inherently trust me, this added level of security makes them feel comfortable with off-site data backup,” Zimmer added.

Disk Hero with the Remote Target feature is a cost effective solution for customers. The Remote Target gives independent consultants an elegant service for protecting their clients and their data. The consultant can add benefits to their offerings without adding overhead or work.
